Another SR dog poisoning

George McGill and neighbor Pamela McVey ponder the rash of dog poisoning in their neighborhood. McVey is holding her dog "Tiny" which replaces the first dog that was found dead.

SAN RAMON — Another case of apparent dog poisoning by strychnine struck the Mangos Drive neighborhood over the weekend.

It is the fifth such incident during the past five months in a two block radius according to residents there.

This time, two dogs owned by George McGill were victims of a poisoning.

"It wasn't an accidental poisoning," said McGill's veterinarian Dr. William Evans of Parkway Veterinarian Hospital in Dublin. "Based on the clinical signs of one dog's convulsions there is some indication of strychnine poisoning," Evans said.

"And, somebody must have gone through some trouble to get their hands on it," Evans added, "since strychnine is not available to the public."

One of McGill's dogs, a Keeshound, was treated and is recovering from the poison. The other dog — a Manchester Terrier/Brittany spaniel — was still under sedation late yesterday.

The first case of such poisoning occurred to a dog owned by McGill's neighbor, Pamela McVey. Her dog was found dead on her front lawn five months ago.

Another dog owned by Ron Gonzales of the same neighborhood was treated at Glory Dodd Animal Clinic in San Ramon. It cost Gonzales nearly $200 to save his dog which died later of a second strychnine attack.

"The source of the poisoning is unknown," Dr. Evans said, "since the dogs were allowed to run free. That's why we need a leash law in Contra Costa County."

Of the five cases of strychnine poisoning in that neighborhood only one owner had his dogs confined to the yard.

According to Lt. Peter Robertshaw of Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department, it is a misdemeanor to poison animals.

McGill did file a report to the sheriff's department and Robertshaw said his office plans to follow up on the report and go to the District Attorney to file a complaint if there are any leads.

'Irresponsible'

Mori's blast for Jarvis tax initiative

"The Jarvis-Gann tax reform initiative is the most fiscally-irresponsible measure to come before the electorate in many a year," Assemblyman Floyd Mori has charged.

Speaking at the installation dinner of the Amador and Pleasanton classified employees Saturday night in Dublin, Mori said that "If the Jarvis-Gann amendment is passed this June and becomes effective July 1, you and I know what will be the first services to go — school, food and clerical services."

Mori said he was hopeful of the legislature opening the lid to $1 billion in property tax relief in the next few months and a new retirement benefits measure for school classified employees by March 1.

The controversial Jarvis amendment asks that the maximum amount of any ad valorem tax on real property not exceed 1 per cent of the full cash value of such property. The 1 per cent tax would be collected by the counties and apportioned according to law to the districts within the counties.

"Full cash value" means the county assessor's valuation of real property as shown on the 1975-76 tax bill under "full cash value," or thereafter, the appraised value of real property when purchased, newly constructed, or a change in ownership has occurred after the 1975 assessment.

Mori devoted much of his talk to the effort being made to bring a new retirement benefits bill forward for Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr.'s signature. "While the contribution of school employees remains at 7 per cent compared to just 5 per cent for state employees, the latter's benefits are more."

Mori referred to an override effort on a previous bill that Gov. Brown vetoed. But a new bill in the hopper, also related to school classified employee benefits, is being pushed by Mori. He and other legislators have a mid-February date with Brown to insure permanent funding for a retirement bill.

The Pleasanton legislator said Speaker Leo McCarthy is supporting the new school employees bill and he (Mori) is working with California School Employees Association lobbyist Richard Ritz to put the new bill across before recess of the current session.

Also speaking to the 50 or so classified employees at the annual installation was Ruth Sullivan of San Leandro, state chairperson for the Political Action for Classified Employees (PACE).

Mrs. Sullivan gave a hard-hitting speech, urging school classified employees to work harder for legisla-

Five bid for Murray board spot

Five Murray School District residents are in the running for the school board position vacated by Bob Foster.

The district introduced the five who had submitted resumes by 10 a.m. yesterday and then opened the meeting last night at Murray School in Dublin to presentations by each.

Candidates to succeed Foster are John C. Bird, 8630 Briarwood Ln., Dublin; Linda Cooley, 6730 Menlo Ct., Pleasanton; G.T. McCormick, 7170 Emerald Ave., Dublin; David Melander, 7988 Limewood Ct., Pleasanton, and Harry Molz, 7752 Fredericksen Ln., Dublin.

Mrs. Cooley and Molz ran in the last election that saw Donald Biddle elected to the board and Linda Jeffery reelected.

At last night's special meeting, applicants addressed the board and audience regarding their backgrounds and educational philosophies. Each was asked to respond to questions from the audience.

Present board members will interview selected candidates at their regular meeting Monday, Feb. 6.

An appointment, to complete Foster's term which continues through March of 1979, will be made on or before Feb. 14.

The appointed individual remains a provisional appointee for 30 days. Any person(s) objecting to the appointment may file a petition with the County Superintendent of Schools within 30 days after the announcement. Upon receipt of a valid petition the county superintendent will order an election. Further information regarding this process may be had by calling the county superintendent's office in Hayward.

Foster resigned two weeks ago to take a store director position with Mervyn's at a new branch in Corona, Riverside County.

Present board members include Pete Snyder, Ann Henderson, Mrs. Jeffery and Biddle.

Home costs will rise

Builders not shaken by school fees

SAN RAMON — Developers building houses in San Ramon are not being scared off by a new Contra Costa County ordinance requiring them to pay a $300 fee to help finance temporary school facilities in areas where overcrowding exists.

The ordinance implements a state law (SB-201) which became effective Jan. 1.

Land can be dedicated in lieu of the fee or a combination of land/fee can be arranged under the new ordinance.

Supervisor Eric Hasseltine said the $300 fee would be required for every bedroom after the first bedroom. A maximum of $900 could be charged per unit, he added.

Hasseltine is supervisor of the county's fifth district, which includes San Ramon. He and other supervisors voted in the new ordinance last week.

A spokesman for Shapell Industries of Northern California, Inc. declared the fee "a poor way to go to get schools built." He said all builders could do is tack the added cost onto the price of the house.

"On a four-bedroom home, an additional $1000 will have to be added onto the house price to absorb the fee,"

He said Shapell would probably donate a 10-acre site to the San Ramon Valley School District when a proposed subdivision called "Inverness" went in east of Montevideo. The tract, slated to begin in two months, will have 305 single family houses, the spokesman said. He reported Shapell was already allowing the school district to use the 10-acre site for portables. He added that Shapell would not "back-off" from

Lindgren affair criticism

Candidates take on Parness

LIVERMORE — Nearly two weeks after the sudden resignation of Police Chief Ron Lindgren, reaction from city council candidates still indicates many are not happy with the way the situation was handled by City Manager Bill Parness.

Incumbent Dale Turner indicated he has questions he would like Parness to answer about the procedure and he will be asking them at the next city council meeting Monday. "Mr. Parness has placed me in a very awkward position by not informing me of the now public investigation until it had been completed," he said.

"Mr. Parness was wrong, in my opinion, not to inform me, one of his employers, immediately upon receiving information that there were serious problems within the police department. To conduct an investigation without my knowledge is just totally unacceptable."

He cited the action to hire an investigator as a "unilateral decision by the city manager."

Another candidate, Marlin Ebert, noted that "my heart goes out to Chief Lindgren because it would appear that his career as a police official is in serious jeopardy. But he is an adult and responsible for his actions."

Ebert continued, "My head tells me that the way it has been handled, and is being handled, by City Manager Parness and Mayor Tirsell and the rest of the 'gutless' city council smacks of the same sort of paternalistic coverup that we all shuddered through in the Nixon Watergate affair. The next result, so far, is public dismay and ugly speculation."

Ebert said he felt it was "absolutely my right" as a citizen and a taxpayer to know what is happening in this matter. "The people of Livermore are not children and should not be treated as such by their elected and appointed public officials," he concluded.

Mayor Helen Tirsell has stood behind the original action, explaining that they did what was best considering the situation.

David Woods felt there were "too many questions left unanswered" in the whole situation. "The less they talk about it, the more it seems like a coverup, but then in another sense they can't say that much about it," he explained.

Raise for everyone

Everyone on the Livermore City Council will get the raise in salary approved by the council on Dec. 30.

Originally, City Attorney Gary Reiners informed the members the raise from $200 to $292 per month would go to only the three members elected March 7. The two incumbent councilmembers, Marshall Kamena and Glen Dahlbacka, would receive the old salary until after the 1980 election, he said.

Reiners later quietly revised the interpretation of the salary question, and said the raise will be effective following the election for all members of the city council.

Picking a school chief

The final "community in-put" session in the initial process towards seeking a new superintendent will be held tonight at Dublin High School library at 8.

Residents of the Amador and Pleasanton school districts are encouraged to attend tonight's brief meeting and present their views on what qualities the new superintendent should possess. Dr. Bruce Newlin will leave the district Feb. 10 to assume the superintendency of the Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District.

Another look at Vallecitos

An independent arm of the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission will consider a seismic reevaluation of the Vallecitos Nuclear Center near Sunol Feb. 10.

The Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards will discuss recent licensing and operating experience of the General Electric Test Reactor (GETR) at the public meeting.

The 50-megawatt reactor was shut down Oct. 27 when the NRC found evidence that a possible earthquake fault came within 200 feet of it. GE claims the land activity is simply a landslide.

More than 60 persons were laid off in December as a result of the shutdown. GE spokesman Randy Watkins yesterday said many of these people were temporarily placed in jobs within other GE divisions locally; several others had quit, he added.

GE is awaiting word from the NRC on whether it will be allowed to reopen the reactor. GETR produces several types of radioisotopes used in nuclear medicine.

The NRC is currently studying two plans for modifications at the Sunol facility proposed by GE. One proposal deals with modifications to ensure the facility's safety in case of an earthquake assuming a fault exists; the other proposal assumes there is no nearby fault.

Watkins said it was unclear whether GE would send local representatives to the Washington, D.C. gathering because of the meeting's limited time.

Rap Sheet

Goods worth $13,000 taken

DUBLIN — More than $13,000 in office equipment and tools was stolen from two Scarlett Court businesses sometime Saturday, the sheriff's department reported.

Burglars cut a fence, broke door glass, cut through chain with a torch and forced open interior doors to enter Dublin Drywall Co. at 6345 Scarlett Court and York Welding Supply at 6343 Scarlett Court, officers said.

Once inside Dublin Drywall Co., burglars took five calculators, air spray equipment, an electric type-writer and other equipment with a total value of $11,424.

York Welding Supply was entered via an adjacent window. Three calculators, cash and acetylene torch gear valued at $2,020 were reported missing.

Deputies found evidence indicating that the burglars wore gloves while committing the thefts. The burglaries are being investigated.

LIVERMORE — Burglars entered an unlocked Lee Avenue residence Friday and took an estimated $2,500 in valuables, police reported.

After opening the large garage door and entering an unlocked interior access door, burglars conducted a thorough room by room ransacking of the house. Missing items include a color television, sterling silver set, toolbox, jewelry, camera and coins.

Neighbors reported seeing a vehicle in front of the house Friday. The burglary is being investigated.

LIVERMORE — A driver who knocked down two dozen orange street pylons while yelling at a street repair crew on Airway Boulevard Friday apparently tried to run down one worker who jumped on his motorcycle in pursuit of the car, police reported.

According to reports, the man drove by with his door open knocking down the cones while assailing the street crew. He drove away at a high rate of speed.

One worker jumped on his motorcycle and pulled alongside the man, ordering him to pull over. Instead the vehicle swerved left forcing the cyclist to take evasive action, and then spun around and drove right at the him, police said, forcing the cyclist off the roadway.

Police are tracing the license number of the suspect vehicle.

LIVERMORE — A Holmes Street resident unloading his camper late Saturday narrowly missed being struck by a bullet that hit the open camper door just behind him, police reported.

The man told officers he drove around but could find no suspects. Police said the gunshot, apparently from a .22-caliber weapon, came from the nearby arroyo area.

The man had previously reported threats to his life. The incident is under investigation.

PLEASANTON — A car parked on Mohr Avenue near Santa Rita Road was burglarized of $422 in goods Friday, police reported.

Burglars forced their way into the vehicle and removed two stereo amplifiers a tap and a tuner/tape deck combination, police said. There are no suspects.

LIVERMORE — A mail carrier walking her route on Wall Street Friday morning was the victim of a man who exposed himself while seated in a parked car, police reported.

The woman continued delivering mail to the end of the block and then called police. Police questioned a suspect but no arrests were made.

LIVERMORE — Persons unknown broke into the California Highway Patrol truck scales office on Interstate 580 near Greenville Road Saturday — and left officers a thank-you note.

Officers noted the door had been pried open and discovered a note when they entered the office located on the westbound side.

Niles Canyon tragedy

A 23-year-old Fremont man was killed when his vehicle went out of control and collided head-on with a truck on Niles Canyon Boulevard yesterday morning. A highway patrol spokesman said Joe Dale Gilstrap Jr., 23, was driving westbound about 8:45 a.m. when he tried to pass another car. He apparently realized he did not have enough room to pass so put on his brakes and lost control of his car. The car traveled into the eastbound lanes and the two vehicles collided. Truck driver Ken Russell, 59, of Concord was treated for minor cuts. Traffic was slowed for three hours while workmen attempted to remove the wreckage.

Home projects will go on building in this area due to the fee which he said had been raised from $225 to $288 and now to $300.

A Broadmoor representative said the new fee increase forces builders to be tax collectors and "nobody likes to be a tax collector."

"But we aren't going to change our game plan," he continued. He said the decision on whether to donate the fee or land or a combination depended on each development's characteristics.

Broadmoor's Country Club project off of Crow Canyon Road has 849 houses scheduled to be built. The buildings include single family detached units, zero-lot-line units plus some townhouses, according to their spokesman.

Carl Dame said the fee raise was "something we just can't worry about. The raise isn't a surprise. We have expected it for quite awhile. I don't know what kind of effect it will have."

Dame's Twin Creeks South development has three phases encompassing three developments. A total of 154 houses is slated for the enterprise.

L.T. Gunn, administrative services officer for Contra Costa County Building Inspection Department, said 3,822 building permits had been taken out during the calendar year 1977 for single family dwellings in unincorporated areas.

He said 75 per cent of those permits were for San Ramon. by Sue Vogelsanger

Parness hit

David Eller said, "There's a cloud over the city which, from outward appearances it seems could have been handled differently. There are enough people who feel that it was not handled right by Mr. Parness and the city council. Mr. Parness could have handled it in a better way, and the council people must remain independent of the city officials." He emphasized that it's hard for an outsider to know all the facts, "but the people have a right to know what is going on."

Another candidate, Bob Weissel, echoed Turner's comments, noting, "It's about time this town woke up to what Parness is doing. I said what Dale is saying three weeks ago and lost a promotion over it."

CARD's new move to stall pipeline

PLEASANTON — The CARD Committee is taking on new strategy in the 30-member group's fight to stop the Livermore/Amador Valley Waste Water Agency's pipeline.

Yesterday CARD launched an attack on the pipeline environmental impact statement completed over two years ago, claiming the pipeline design has changed, thus the EIS is invalid.

CARD spokesperson Birdie Bianchi also revealed the group has gathered 6,100 signatures in its drive to put a valley-wide initiative on the ballot seeking voter approval or denial of the pipeline.

The group needed 5,000 signatures to qualify the initiative.

CARD will take the petitions to LAVWMA authorities this week, but the earliest the initiative could get on the ballot would be in June. And LAVWMA could still delay the initiative, claiming it is directed towards an administrative, not a policy, action.

With the initiative in doubt, CARD wrote the federal Environmental Protection Agency yesterday, asking regional administrator Paul DeFalco to place the moratorium on the LAVWMA pipeline.

CARD argues that a change in pipeline design increasing pipe size by six inches could increase the pipeline's capacity by 44 percent. The pipeline is eventually planned to have a maximum 15.6 million gallons a day in capacity. But CARD fears the larger pipes might allow LAVWMA to go over the maximum without voter approval.

CARD's letter to DeFalco notes, "... the LAVWMA joint powers agreement are not binding, because the joint powers agreement can and will be changed when it suits the purpose of the local agencies."

"Since the project has been substantially changed, since the final EIS was prepared, and these changes would substantially worsen the secondary impacts, i.e. air pollution, we request that a supplemental EIS be prepared," the letter continues.

They're taking the bus again

Though foggy and cold in the Valley yesterday, some commuters here had reason to rejoice. Local BART customers could once again leave the driving to someone else and take the free feeder bus service to Hayward and Walnut Creek as AC Transit resumed normal operations after a 10-week strike.

BART offered the free service from yesterday until Feb. 28 as a goodwill gesture to the 1,500 train passengers inconvenienced when AC shutdown the buses it runs here under contract.

"Mostly I had to hitchhike during the strike," said John Arness of Dublin who commutes to his job in Oakland and sometimes to San Francisco.

Systemwide AC reported ridership was approximately 60 percent of the pre-strike normal yesterday and BART reported a nine percent drop in ridership from last week, which still netted it a six percent increase overall.

BART and AC spokesmen would not speculate on the long-term strike effects on regular riders but noted it would be about a week before shifts in ridership trends were spotted.

"We're not surprised," said AC's Mike Mills about yesterday's missing customers. "That's normal following an interruption in service for that length of time."

The 68-day strike forced many local commuters into their cars but for others like Arness and BART director Bob Allen of Livermore hitchhiking or hailing rides from the street corner was the answer.

"I had two signs, one said 'Hayward' and one said 'Bay Fair,'" said Allen, who added he used that system most of the strike.

Without operating expenses AC and Valley express actually saved money, almost $500,000 daily.

BART's feeder bus service to its stations in Hayward and Walnut Creek resumed yesterday morning after AC Transit workers returned to work following settlement of their 68-day strike Saturday. AC operates the express lines under contract with BART and the walkout stranded 1,500 regular customers.

CARD still has hope

PLEASANTON — CARD spokesperson Birdie Bianchi believes the 30-member group still has a good chance of stopping the valley's waste water export pipeline, despite contrary comments by CARD member Ray Kidder.

Kidder said last week that CARD had little chance to stop the LAVVMA pipeline, unless immediate court action is taken.

"I don't feel that way. That's his opinion, but it's not CARD's," said Bianchi.

Kidder was quoted as saying the fact that the initiative petition seeking to stop the pipeline missed the March 7 ballot might kill CARD's drive.

Not so, according to spokesperson Bianchi, who still believes CARD can begin court action to halt the pipeline until the initiative gets on the ballot, probably in June.

The CARD initiative seeks to force the pipeline issue back before the voters for approval or denial. Pleasanton voters approved a similar pipeline proposal a year ago November, but other valley voters turned it down.

The initiative missed the March 7 ballot because it applies to all three valley governments, but there is no election scheduled in the Dublin, San Ramon Services District until June.

Aid for kids' meals

Valley Child Care has announced beginning this month it would aid in certification of families seeking to participate in the federal WIC program; a food, health and nutrition program.

The WIC system uses vouchers to allow purchase of milk, cereal, eggs, cheese, formula and fruit juice by families living in the Valley, needing nutritional support, having children under the age of five years or with an expectant mother and economically qualify by earning less than $888 for a family of four or $722 for a family of three.

WIC services will be explained by an evaluation team at a Feb. 15 meeting a Valley Child Care, 1520 Catalina Court, Livermore, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

For further information call Valley Child Care, 455-5111 or WIC representative Shiley Fairbrother, 462-2365.

Swim programs under way

DUBLIN — Free of charge winter aquatics programs are in progress at Valley Community Swim Center.

The water is 80 degrees and dressing areas are heated.

This activity is sponsored by the Dublin San Ramon Services District Recreation Department.

Lap swimming is available Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m.

Lap swimming can also be practiced Saturday and Sunday from noon to 1 p.m.

Recreational swimming is on Saturday and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m.

Lessons in swimming, diving, scuba diving, exercising and much more are available. There are activities for adults, children and teens.

Ski schools open

The Livermore Area Recreation and Park District will begin its second session of beginner ski schools Wednesday, Jan. 30. The session will continue Feb. 1, 7 and 8, and costs $17 for the course.

The course is conducted on artificial snow by Bob Rodriguez. Students 14 years and older may attend. For more information call LARP at 447-7300.

Shot clinic in SR

SAN RAMON — A Contra Costa County Health Department Immunization Clinic will be held at the Family Medical Center Thursday.

Immunization against polio, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and measles will be offered. A German Measles vaccine will also be available for ages 1 to 12. Smallpox vaccination, no longer routinely recommended, is also available for those who need it for special circumstances.

Children 13 years of age and under must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. An adult bringing a child other than his own must present written consent signed by the child's parent or guardian. Those persons 14 to 17 years old may either be accompanied by a parent or guardian, or bring written consent.

The immunization clinic will be held Thursday from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Family Medical Center, 9260 Alcosta Blvd.

First aid taught in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON — The Emergency Response Program is offering a course in American Red Cross First Aid training this Wednesday and Thursday from 6 to 10 p.m.

Students should be 13 years or older and can register at the recreation department offices, 200 Bernal Avenue. Course and materials fee is $6.50.

An open community meeting is also scheduled for Monday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Cultural Arts building on Black Avenue. The meeting is free and the topics to be discussed include smoke alarms, emergency numbers, first aid practices and family emergency plans.

She likes the risks, thinks they've paid off

LIVERMORE — The city still faces problems — and challenges — in the years ahead. And council members always will receive criticism from some area, no matter what they do. But incumbent Mayor Helen Tirsell says, "Looking ahead 20 to 30 years, we feel we've laid the groundwork for good things to happen."

Tirsell is running for reelection with the same candor that marked her years on the council and planning commission. "I am a person who chooses to risk and I like a challenge," she says firmly. "I recognize the risks of local government and for me, so far, as a person, the advantages have outweighed the detriments."

She talks of the people she represents. "On people issues, I think you have to be very intuitive about what people are telling you and what they mean. For instance, silence from your constituents can be read a lot of ways. You have to pursue that and find out why they are silent."

She hasn't found being a woman in politics a source of criticism. "I think, however, that because I'm a woman, I fall into a mental set for a lot of people. I had some very early editorials written about me as the 'crusty female' and the 'bra burner.'"

But she has seen in her work as a city official that those mayors who are elected have more stature because of their tenure in those areas outside of their cities, at other governmental levels. She says they do a better job for their towns in those agencies.

It would diminish the role of the other four council members publicly, to some degree, she says, but it can't be determined at this point the overall effect.

On finances: "I feel we has failed us," she reflects. The bickering about who will become the next mayor has been a continuous situation, she says.

"People who are elected officials would like to be mayor," says Tirsell. "It takes a person with an ego, who is aggressive and articulate, who has good ideas to get to the council in the first place. Why would you expect them not to want to be the one person who is in charge at the meeting?"

The Ron Lindgren resignation is an inevitable topic during election, but Tirsell stands firmly on the original actions taken. "There is an obvious reason why we didn't say anything because first we have the legal position," she answers a query about the council not speaking out. "We had to be very careful because under our personnel rules and procedures the chief could appeal for a hearing in public or private, case law is very unclear whether the chief could have that right or not."

She points out that in such hearings the council would sit as a quasi-judicial body. "So therefore we were very careful to maintain a certain amount of objectivity," she says. In that role, "you are not free to say a lot of information that is either condemning or an indictment of any sort."

Tirsell concludes philosophically. "I've thought it over and I can sleep well at night. We tried to proceed judiciously, slowly and mindful of the public sensitivity to the issue and, lastly, to the individuals involved."

Responding to charges of a coverup, "Dale (Turner), John (Staley) and I held it within our very hands to tell the city manager to wait until March 8. That discussion was never held, it was never mentioned. We knew that night it was rocky going."

Tirsell says she feels the tax override was defeated twice simply because taxpayers don't want to spend anymore. She says most do not realize the local government share of total taxes is about $150 to $175 per homeowner, which entitles the homeowner to all city services. "That's a bargain, but that fact is not well known to homeowners," she says.

Discussing the long-term service of Bill Parness as city manager, she says, "There's no city manager going who can do it all, and in my comparison with how other cities function with their city manager, we're certainly very average, and in some areas way above average."

But she adds, "We've never been without criticism of the city staff, that just goes without saying, and the city staff has changed their ways of doing things a hundred times. They expect criticism, that goes with the job."

On the railroad relocation: "That was the best thing we ever did, also the most controversial, and it meant the difference of make-or-break-it for the downtown."

The mayor sees optimism in the central area development, too. "We have 88 acres in the middle of town where we can plan the business system, all major streets, traffic flow. It's easier to deal with an area coming alive rather than one that's dying," she notes.

She hasn't found being a woman in politics a source of criticism. "I think, however, that because I'm a woman, I fall into a mental set for a lot of people. I had some very early editorials written about me as the 'crusty female' and the 'bra burner.'"

But she has seen in her work as a city official that those mayors who are elected have more stature because of their tenure in those areas outside of their cities, at other governmental levels. She says they do a better job for their towns in those agencies.

It would diminish the role of the other four council members publicly, to some degree, she says, but it can't be determined at this point the overall effect.

On finances: "I feel we has failed us," she reflects. The bickering about who will become the next mayor has been a continuous situation, she says.

"People who are elected officials would like to be mayor," says Tirsell. "It takes a person with an ego, who is aggressive and articulate, who has good ideas to get to the council in the first place. Why would you expect them not to want to be the one person who is in charge at the meeting?"

The Ron Lindgren resignation is an inevitable topic during election, but Tirsell stands firmly on the original actions taken. "There is an obvious reason why we didn't say anything because first we have the legal position," she answers a query about the council not speaking out. "We had to be very careful because under our personnel rules and procedures the chief could appeal for a hearing in public or private, case law is very unclear whether the chief could have that right or not."

She points out that in such hearings the council would sit as a quasi-judicial body. "So therefore we were very careful to maintain a certain amount of objectivity," she says. In that role, "you are not free to say a lot of information that is either condemning or an indictment of any sort."

Tirsell concludes philosophically. "I've thought it over and I can sleep well at night. We tried to proceed judiciously, slowly and mindful of the public sensitivity to the issue and, lastly, to the individuals involved."

Responding to charges of a coverup, "Dale (Turner), John (Staley) and I held it within our very hands to tell the city manager to wait until March 8. That discussion was never held, it was never mentioned. We knew that night it was rocky going."

Tirsell says she feels the tax override was defeated twice simply because taxpayers don't want to spend anymore. She says most do not realize the local government share of total taxes is about $150 to $175 per homeowner, which entitles the homeowner to all city services. "That's a bargain, but that fact is not well known to homeowners," she says.

Discussing the long-term service of Bill Parness as city manager, she says, "There's no city manager going who can do it all, and in my comparison with how other cities function with their city manager, we're certainly very average, and in some areas way above average."

But she adds, "We've never been without criticism of the city staff, that just goes without saying, and the city staff has changed their ways of doing things a hundred times. They expect criticism, that goes with the job."

On the railroad relocation: "That was the best thing we ever did, also the most controversial, and it meant the difference of make-or-break-it for the downtown."

The mayor sees optimism in the central area development, too. "We have 88 acres in the middle of town where we can plan the business system, all major streets, traffic flow. It's easier to deal with an area coming alive rather than one that's dying," she notes.

'Transportationally handicapped'

Locating the transit problems

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Board of Supervisors approved a coordinated paratransit action plan for elderly and handicapped persons that was submitted to them by County Administrator Loren W. Enoch.

The purpose of the proposed paratransit system is to provide more inclusive transportation than is now available.

The Valley Transportation Committee (VTC) participated in generating the action plan, according to Tom McCormick. He is the county revenue sharing coordinator.

VTC is a group comprised of residents of the Livermore-Amador and San Ramon valleys, county officials and transportation representatives.

Other participants were the Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC), Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART), Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District and the Office on Aging.

The recommended plan was reviewed and approved by the Executive Committee of the Developmental Disabilities Council, the Transportation Committee of the Commission on Aging and the Hayward Transportation Consortium. County supervisors nodded their approval last week.

According to report information compiled by an urban consulting firm, Crain and Associates of Menlo Park, 4.22 per cent of Livermore's population is "transportation handicapped (TH)." Pleasanton's TH percentage is 3.70; Dublin and unincorporated "area valley and Sunol," 2.72 per cent. TH refers to elderly and handicapped persons unable to utilize transportation facilities unless special facilities, planning or design are available.

Major highlights of the report pointed out "existing county and city-funded paratransit services are fragmented and do not serve 25 per cent of the transportation handicapped."

Also, "approximately 5.8 per cent (64,000) of the county's population are deemed transportation handicapped."

Of that 64,000, 45 per cent are 65 or older. Compared to 16 per cent of the population, 33 per cent of the 64,000 have annual incomes of less than $5,000. The unemployment rate among the prime working years (25 to 54) of the 64,000 is more than twice as high as the general population, according to the report.

It was stated that a coordinated countywide plan developed by the county, AC Transit, BART and MTC would result in a substantial increase in revenue from the State Transportation Development Act and Federal resources.

The action plan is divided into three phases. Step one calls for the county to apply for MTC funding to retain a Transportation Planner Consultant. By joint powers agreement, the county, BART and AC Transit agree to develop the proposed plan. A technical advisory council is to be organized.

Next comes a coordinated paratransit plan and application prepared by the transportation consultant. The plan and application will be submitted to Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) by March 31, 1978.

Finally, upon receipt of the Federal grant, the joint powers agencies will complete the required planning and start the demonstration phase on or before Jan. 1, 1979.

Library board meets

DUBLIN — Directors of the Alameda County/Dublin Library Corporation will meet this evening at 6 in the Dublin Public Library, 6930 Village Parkway, Dublin.

There are two agenda items regarding the proposed new library.

One is for board members to approve the official statement, according to Jerry Burke. He is secretary to the board.

He explained the official statement acts as a "bond selling document" that goes to prospective bond buyers.

"Information in the official statement has to be totally accurate," Burke added.

Item two will be a "tentative" awarding of the construction contract to the lowest bidder.

The award is subject to the bond sale scheduled for Feb. 28, Burke said.

The lowest bid submitted was for $868,600 by S.J. Amoroso of Oakland.

The architect's estimated figure was $922,000.

B of A grant competition begins

Local high school and community college students this week begin competition for $295,000 in cash awards in the Bank of America's two annual scholarship programs.

Some 300,000 graduating seniors from virtually every high school in California will compete for more than $210,000 in the Achievement Awards program, and more than 160,000 second-year students from California's 101 community colleges will vie for $85,000 in cash in the Community College Awards program.

Faculty committees in each high school are now selecting top students in four general study areas — fine arts, liberal arts, science and mathematics, and vocational arts. The individual school winners will compete March 26 with students from neighboring schools in semifinal zone events. Zone winners in Northern California will then move on to five regional finals and the chance to win one of 20 first-place awards of $1,000 each. Second and third-place winners each receive $750 and $500, respectively. All other finalists receive $250 awards.

In the Community College Awards program, faculty committees are selecting top students to represent their schools in four fields — business, science-engineering, social science-humanities, and technical-vocational. These students will compete March 29 in area events. Winners in Northern California — two in each of the four categories — then move on to the finals April 27 in San Francisco. Finalists in each field there earn top awards of $2,000 each. Second-place students win $1,000 each and third-place winners receive $500. All other finalists receive $500.

This is the 30th year for the Achievement Awards and the 25th year for the Community College Awards, program coordinator Lee Gomez said. "Through the years the program has changed a great deal. Student participation has expanded, the number of awards has increased and new elements have been added to reflect the development and growth of the state's school systems."

Teenage sex on the rise

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide report on adolescent sex shows a one-third increase between 1971 to 1976 in both premarital sexual activity and pregnancy among girls 15 to 19 years old.

However, the authors of the report said that learning about the dimensions of sexual behavior among female teen-agers does not help to explain that behavior.

"Far more study is required before we can hope to explain and understand the sexual and reproductive behavior of young Americans," they concluded.

The study, directed by sociologists Melvin Zelnik and John F. Kantner of Johns Hopkins University, was published Monday in Family Planning Perspectives — the journal of the Alan Guttmacher Institute, an affiliate of Planned Parenthood.

The 1976 study is based on 2,193 interviews nationwide; the 1971 study on 4,392. But the authors warned that the 1976 data on blacks is questionable because these teen-agers underreported the incidence of abortions.

The authors said they reached this conclusion because estimates of the number of children born based on the survey would be higher than the actual number of births.

Because of this and the fact that women living in college dormitories were not reflected in the survey the authors said they could not provide a margin of error for the results.

The percentage of white girls 15 to 19 who had experienced premarital intercourse rose from 26.3 in the 1971 group to 37.2 in the 1976 group, the report said. The percentage of whites having a first pregnancy rose from 6.4 to 9.3.

The 1976 study also reported:

— Four out of five pregnancies among teen-agers were conceived out of wedlock.

— Eight out of 10 premarital pregnancies among teen-agers who did not marry before the outcome of the pregnancy were unintended, about the same as among the 1971 group. Just one in 7 of those interviewed used contraception.

— The proportion of first pregnancies terminated by abortion about doubled from the 1971 group to the 1976 group.

— Adoption and foster placement declined substantially from an already low level. In the 1976 survey, all but 7 percent of the babies born out of wedlock lived with their teenage mothers.

Of all whites who had a premarital first pregnancy, only 36 percent married before the outcome of the pregnancy in the 1976 group, compared with 52 percent in the 1971 group. Only 9 percent married after the pregnancy in the 1976 group, compared with 12 percent in 1971.

Among the sexually active teens, out-of-wedlock childbearing declined by more than one-fifth between the two survey periods. The principle factor in this decline appeared to be the wider availability of abortion, the authors said.

THE SECRET INGREDIENT

On February 17, 1962, at 2:32 a.m. a large silver airship of the interplanetary mode landed silently in a field outside a small California town.

One witnessed the arrival of the vessel, the passenger who emerged from the shining ship, or the equally silent and graceful departure. Its flashing colored lights revealed the oaks and native sycamores and the foothills of the coast range south of the town as the giant vessel slipped away, unknown to the inhabitants of that part of the world.

By 2:45 a.m., Zarfcoom had walked to a nearby street, adjusted his watch beneath a street light, checked his wallet for money and his identification, picked up his suitcase, and instantaneously zapped himself to the edge of town, checking into a motel as John Singleton.

Zarfcoom was sent to earth from the Planet Socko for the purpose of finding out and altering whatever plans the earthlings might have made concerning space weapons. Zarfcoom could appear to be human in every way, but he was completely devoid of emotion, rather like a machine.

During the night, Zarfcoom set up monitoring devices in the motel room and recorded environmental data, which was sent back to Socko, as well as being recorded in his own extensive memory banks.

Every sound in the town was noted, analyzed and recorded, including all conversations and every function, mechanical, physical and chemical within the radiation laboratory outside of town.

In the morning, Zarfcoom, who had assumed the appearance of a slightly graying earth man, walking along the street toward the bus stop leading to the radiation laboratory, picked up on his sensors some environmental phenomenon which disturbed him greatly, causing him to stop in his tracks.

The bleeps inside his head got louder and louder as he turned toward an ice cream parlor offering 35 flavors. He walked in and sat at the counter.

"What can I do for you?" said Harvey Morris. "What is your favorite for today, Sir?"

Zarfcoom looked at the list offered him. His sensors were whirring. The bleeping was almost painful, inside his head. A message was coming in from Socko. "Agent Zarfcoom, proceed with your mission. You must be at the laboratory by 10:45 a.m. to meet with the earth scientists and relay their plans. Agent Zarfcoom, come in, come in."

But for the first time in all of Zarfcoom's centuries-long spying he preferred not to answer the Socko control's call.

He looked down the list of flavors. Zing. Zing. Zing. His head was percolating with Zings and bleeps. "Should I have Pineapple Peanut butter Date crunch?" he wondered. "Or should I have Burgundy Almond French Vanilla?" Zino. Zing. Bleep. Poor Zarfcoom's head was bursting. And Socko was calling urgently, "Come in Zarfcoom. It is now exactly 10:38 a.m. earth time. The meeting of the scientists is at 10:45 a.m. You must be there. You must fulfill your mission. You must influence the world's scientists to give up their plans for space defense weapons. Carry on with your mission."

"Perhaps Mint Cherry Maple Toffee, or Dacquiri Ice Bon Bon," thought Zarfcoom. "Then there is Mandarin Praline Chocolate Sherbet or Pecan Jamaica Chocolate Fudge. Or how about Nutty Coconut Pistachio Almond?"

"You just take your time, Sir," Harvey Morris said patiently. "But, I may just have the flavor for you. I concocted it last night. It's called Peppermint Almond Rainbow Airship. The name just came to me about 2:30 a.m. It contains a secret ingredient," Harvey chortled.

Now Zarfcoom's sensors were pounding and the zings were overlapping one another. "That's it!" said the interplanetary space agent. "Give me Peppermint Almond Rainbow Airship."

"One large dish of Peppermint Almond Rainbow Airship coming up," said Harvey, as he put five large scoops of the multi-colored dessert into a crystal footed bowl, and set it on the shining counter in front of Zarfcoom, stood back and smiled.

Zing. Zing. Zing. Zarfcoom was spacing out. "Come in, Come in," came the frantic message from Socko. But Zarfcoom had placed a mouthful of the sumptuous ice cream into his simulated earthling mouth with its taste buds. "Zow. Zow. Zow. Zing. Zing. Zing. His whole sensor mechanism seemed to be going. Zarfcoom's head seemed to explode in a kind of ecstasy. He could no longer pick up the messages from Socko. The clock read 11 a.m.

"I'll have another dish of Peppermint Almond Rainbow Airship," said Zarfcoom, laughing for the first time since he took earthly form. "I knew you'd like it," said the cheerful Harvey. "I put in that secret ingredient, you know. I tried to think of the flavors that would be the most delicious, and the colors that would be the most beautiful. I love the people who come in here. I want them to enjoy themselves, so you might say the secret ingredient is love."

Zarfcoom had finished his second large dish of ice cream, and ordered another. He no longer heard bleeps or zings. He was just a slightly graying man named John Singleton who absolutely loved ice cream.

YOUR HEALTH DEPENDS ON THE NERVOUS SYSTEM

This column has frequently referred to "normal nerve function." We will probably use the term many times in the future. Today we will answer the question: "What is normal nerve function?"

In spite of what you have read, there is not much mystery about it. The purpose of this article is to set forth briefly in clear, understandable English how your health depends on your nerves and how those nerves can be kept in normal condition.

The nervous system of the body is like an electrical system. The brain produces nerve energy, or nerve impulses, just as a dynamo creates electrical energy. The nerve impulses are carried down through the spine and over the nerves to all organs and parts of the body. So, the nerves are like a system of wires that carry electricity to the points where it is to be used. The organs of the body do their work only because the nerves bring to them nerve impulses, just as electric machinery works only when electricity is carried to it over the wires. So, the nervous system must be in normal condition if the many parts of the body are to do their normal work.

In other words, a normal body depends on normal nerve function. Disease begins where anything interferes with the normal function of the nerves.

What do Chiropractors do?

They examine the spine to determine whether any of the vertebrae are out of normal position, thereby causing pressure on nerves that lead to vital organs and other parts of the body. When they find a spinal bone out of place, they adjust it to normal position to relieve the spinal nerves from pressure which interferes with their normal work.

Now you will understand why these spine specialists have been so successful in restoring diseased bodies to normal health. It is because of their skill in locating points of pressure on nerves, and removing the pressure, so that the nerves once more can do their normal work of carrying vital impulses to the organs of the body.

Chiropractic is applicable to a wide variety of diseases that affect the body and mind. For more information on THE NERVOUS SYSTEM call Dr. R.J. Serafin DC at 846-4732 or write 60 Mission Dr., Pleasanton.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 45-year-old woman and I have always been in excellent mental and physical health. Lately, though, I've been troubled with terrifying nightmares for the first time in my life. It's gotten to the point now that I don't want to go to sleep because I'm so frightened of what I'll see in my dreams. I haven't discussed this with anyone else because if I ever told others my dreams, they'd think I was losing my mind, and maybe I am. But I can't live with it by myself any longer. Plus that, I'm getting so exhausted from fighting sleep that I'm beginning to look haggard and to lose interest in eating and seeing friends. I'm scared. What can I do, H.A.

DEAR H.A.: Go to a doctor and tell him or her exactly when your nightmares started. By analyzing the problem carefully with a professional you may very well be able to gain some insight into something that may have been troubling you for some time, but is only surfacing now.

Nightmares are a symptom of emotional disturbance on an unconscious level. Once you discover what's causing your problem, you may be surprised how much more relaxed and comfortable you feel in your waking hours.

Insomnia and nightmares are usually caused by some underlying anxiety or depression that the person is unwilling or unable to face in waking hours.

It is buried deep in the unconscious. Nightmares come during the deepest stage of non-dreaming sleep, according to psychiatrist Dr. Charles Fisher, and the heart rate during the nightmare often doubles or nearly triples. Night terror generally involves a single vivid mental image and is not a dream in the ordinary sense. It is a brief psychotic attack related to a traumatic episode in the subject's past.

Try catching up on your sleep by taking afternoon naps. You'll be much less apt to have bad dreams then.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: It just breaks my heart to see that my grandsons are in their teens and don't seem to appreciate their father. He has devoted his life to making a good home for them and always had their interests in mind. They're always putting him down. My son doesn't complain, but I know it hurts. The boys aren't too bad with their mother, but they refuse to listen when she pleads the case for their father. When they were younger, they idolized him—now they ignore him and act as if he's too stupid to tolerate. What can I do, B.R.

DEAR B.R.: I Don't think it would hurt if you pointed out to them that their behavior is hurting their father's feelings. However, don't be disappointed if this seems to produce no results. What you're describing isn't uncommon and I'm afraid it's something that only time will change.

Conflict between father and son seems to reach a peak during adolescence. This is often the time when a young boy once again feels the antagonism, hatred, fear, love and jealousy he probably felt as a little boy when he wanted his mother all to himself and would have been pleased if Dad just disappeared.

Unfortunately, this is also a period in which fathers have problems. We live in a youth-oriented culture and many dads unconsciously envy the vigor, power and beauty of their sons, taking pride in them at the same time.

If your son can be patient and bide his time, this period will pass and eventually, he and his sons will be good friends. In a few years, all the time and energy he's putting into their growing up will begin to pay off.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS A TOUCAN?"

A. THE TOUCAN IS A TROPICAL BIRD THAT HAS AN ENORMOUS BILL AND BRIGHTLY COLORED PLUMAGE.

CHAUNTE MILLER LINDEN, NJ

One of the strangest-looking of all birds is the toucan (say too-KAHN), which lives in the tropical forests of South and Central America.

The toucan is easily recognized by its enormous bill, which is actually bigger than its head and nearly half the length of its body.

If you were to see a toucan, you might wonder how this bird can fly with such a huge bill.

The answer is that the bill is much lighter than it looks, because it is filled with many air cells.

The toucan uses its big bill to crunch fruit and other foods. When it sleeps, the toucan turns its head so that its long bill rests on its back.

Toucans are friendly birds and live together in small flocks. When feeding, they make rattling noises with their big bills and call to each other in hoarse, squawking cries.

Toucans are easily tamed. Their plumage is brightly colored, and they are favorites in zoos.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR LAMB — I am 71 years old. My doctor tells me I have pernicious anemia and that my stomach does not produce enough folic acid to digest my food. So I have to have a B-12 injection every other week. I would like to know if it is necessary to have a B-12 injection.

Why wouldn't it do just as much good to take B-12 or folic acid tablets orally? My doctor tells me I have to have the shots the rest of my life. Also, what is B-12, is it a vitamin? My blood count is okay now. It's up to where it is supposed to be.

DEAR READER — You shouldn't criticize success and it sounds like your doctor has solved your problem.

Yes, B-12 is a vitamin. It is absorbed from your small intestine into your blood stream with the help of a substance the normal stomach manufactures called "intrinsic factor." If you don't have the intrinsic factor the B-12 cannot be absorbed into your blood stream and you do not get the benefit of it.

Your doctor is telling you that you do not have any intrinsic factor from your stomach. That means that if you take B-12 tablets they still can't be absorbed. The only way to get the B-12 into your body is by injecting it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 71 years old, 5-foot-9 and weigh 160 pounds. My problem is leg cramps. My legs stay cold and numb from the knees down. My two doctors don't seem concerned, but it's a problem. I take Ben-dryl and quinine, but they don't relieve it. They do help some.

Do you have any suggestion, medication or doctor that could relieve this condition?

DEAR READER — The quotation from the doctor's report indicates that your leg cramps and cold feet are probably caused by poor circulation — the obstruction to the blood flow to your legs. This is a mechanical defect. You'll get some relief from your medicines, but the basic problem will still be there.

I note you live in Alabama. You have an outstanding cardiovascular unit at the University of Alabama, and you should ask your doctors to refer you there for a complete evaluation.

Be imaginative and an innovator this coming year. If you follow the soaring of your intellect, it's probable that you can hit a high mark.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to get what you want today, you may use devices like pleading, flattery or cajolery. If none work, you could even toss a temper tantrum.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are far too modest concerning your own potential today. Because you have such a low estimation of yourself, you may just be proven right.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't get cute in business today. If others are being serious and you are not, they could quickly become soured on the whole deal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Treat those with whom you're associated careerwise with kindness and restraint today. They could easily become alienated and cause a serious rift.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're going to get involved in that old buck-passing game today. All of a sudden, you'll realize that it stops with you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Fight the tendency today to take chances on people you know little about or situations you can't control. It's no time to stick your neck out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Any pressing domestic matters should be attended to today. It would be a serious mistake to try to rationalize them or postpone a decision.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Sincerity will work for you today, but a snow job won't. Keep this in mind if you get the urge to lay it on a little heavy with co-workers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of carrying a wallet or purse today, you might as well be toting a sieve around. Money just seems to slip through your fingers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) For reasons known only to you, today you could anger members of your household to cover a seemingly resolved situation. It's like snatching defeat from the jaws of victory.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Should you do something foolish today that could even prove expensive you may look for others to bail you out. You might even be provoked if they don't.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Beware of making pledges today that could tax your resources. It may inflate your ego, but giver's remorse could quickly result.

No bridge history would be complete without some mention of the Lenz-Culbertson match of 1931-1932 and "Passing Fancy" the book on the history of contract includes this hand played by Sidney Lenz as one of several hands from the match.

Lenz' opening two-heart bid was systemic. He played two bids as strong, but not forcing. Jacoby passed at three hearts because they had a 30-point part score.

The final contract was not the best one in history and a diamond lead would have defeated it easily, but Culbertson opened the deuce of clubs.

This gave Lenz a chance to make the contract by means of a spectacular, but normal expert play. He dropped the queen of clubs under East's king to make it possible to finesse dummy's 10 of clubs later on, discard a loser and score his ninth trick.

KNOCK! KNOCK!

MOOSE MILLER

WOODY ALLEN

Kuhn decides Blue no Red

NEW YORK — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn rejected the trade of Vida Blue to the Cincinnati Reds Monday, but urged the two clubs to restructure the transaction.

The decision, announced by his office after Kuhn had left for Boston, was precipitated by the $1.75 million that the Reds had paid Oakland owner Charles O. Finley for Blue, a 3-time 20-game winner.

Kuhn has placed an informal $400,000 ceiling on the price any team could pay another club for an individual player. The Reds and A's tried to skirt that limit when Cincinnati included minor league slugger Dave Revering in the Blue deal which was announced at baseball's winter meetings in Hawaii last December.

Within minutes of the announcement of the trade, Kuhn informed both clubs that he was withholding approval pending his examination of the transaction.

Finley and Reds President Bob Howsam spent two days testifying at hearings called by the commissioner earlier this month. There was an attempt at a compromise that would have sent other Reds players to Oakland and reduced the cash involved in the transaction. But, when that could not be worked out, the commissioner stopped the deal, then suggested that the two clubs renegotiate during the second interleague trading period that runs from Feb. 15 to March 15.

In Cincinnati, the Reds said they would have no comment until they could study the 15-page decision.

In Oakland, Blue's attorney, Richard Segeria, said he would have no comment until he gets the decision.

It marked the second time that Kuhn has refused to allow Finley to move Blue to another team. Nineteen months ago, the commissioner blocked the sale of Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and also disallowed sales for $1 million each of outfielder Joe Rudi and relief pitcher Rollie Fingers to Boston.

Rudi and Fingers both played out their options with Oakland and moved to other teams as free agents with Finley receiving nothing in return. Blue, who had signed his contract just hours before Finley attempted to sell him in 1976, remained with the A's, and is one of the team's last links with Oakland's three straight world championship teams that dominated baseball from 1972-1974.

When those sales were rejected, Finley sued Kuhn for the $3.5 million he lost in the transactions. The commissioner won the case in United States District Court in Chicago. Finley's appeal of that decision is scheduled to be heard in the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago Feb. 21.

Monday's decision apparently set up another court room collision between the commissioner and Finley, who has been a longtime adversary.

Finley's attorney speaks

Bowie already knew

LOS ANGELES — Neil Papiano, attorney for Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley, said he believes that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn made a decision on the trade of Vida Blue to Cincinnati long before the move was rejected Monday.

"It wasn't unexpected," said Papiano of Kuhn's decision to void the deal, announced at baseball's winter meetings in Hawaii last December, that would have sent Blue to the Reds for $1.75 million and minor league slugger Dave Revering. "Obviously he had his mind made up the minute he knew that Charlie Finley was involved."

"There are a number of courses of action for us to take, which I've discussed with Mr. Finley and the Cincinnati Reds," added Papiano. "We're certainly not going to roll over and play dead."

Monday's decision by Kuhn was the second time the Commissioner has refused to allow Finley to move Blue to another club. Nineteen months ago, Kuhn blocked the sale of the 3-time 20-game winner to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

"I don't think he's a very rational man when it comes to Charlie Finley," said Papiano. "No matter what Kuhn says, he wants the A's destroyed. He's going to do everything he can to destroy them."

"There's no doubt the Commissioner has a personal vendetta against Mr. Finley," continued Papiano. "I can't imagine that other people in baseball can be very pleased with some of Kuhn's recent decisions."

Papiano said that from a legal standpoint, "we have a far better case this time (when Blue was sold to the Yankees). There was not one word in this case involving competitive balance. In this instance, the competitive balance wouldn't be upset."

"Other teams who would feel they would need to make trades because of this deal would have a chance to make them before the season because of the interleague trading period starting Feb. 15," said Papiano. "The hearing was a sham."

Cheri Williams

Williams' 3rd good for a trip South

SAN FRANCISCO — Cheri Williams of Livermore finished third in Sunday's Bonne Bell women's 10-000 meter run in Golden Gate Park here.

Cheri, a senior at Livermore High School, was timed in 36:59. The third-place finish qualified her for next Sunday's National Women 10-000 meter Championship in Beverly Hills.

Williams finished behind winner Roxanne Bier of San Jose, who ran a 36:20 and Laurie Crisp of Modesto (36:49).

Over 900 runners began the race and 779 finished. Most of the runners were older than Cheri.

Williams competed for the San Jose Cinder-gals in the event. Bier, 16, is a defending state high school champion in the two-mile from Independence High School of San Jose.

MacPhail, Joss elected to Hall of Fame

NEW YORK — Leland Stanford (Larry) MacPhail, one of the game's first innovators, and Adrian Joss, a pitcher who died in the prime of life, were named posthumously Monday to baseball's Hall of Fame.

They were chosen by an 18-member veterans' committee and will be inducted Aug. 7 at Cooperstown, N.Y., along with Eddie Mathews, previously selected by the Baseball Writers of America.

MacPhail, known as the "Barnum of Baseball" for his initiation of night play, Old Timers games and other hoopla aimed at promoting gate appeal, made pennant winners of struggling franchises at Cincinnati and Brooklyn before purchasing the New York Yankees for $2.8 million in 1945.

After the Yankees won the World Series by beating the Dodgers in 1947, he retired, telling his players in the dressing room:

"This is it — I am quitting. I made the promise to my wife. It's been tough but thank God I can go out a winner."

He sold his 96.88 per cent interest in the club and retired to an 800-acre estate in Bel Air, Md., not far from Baltimore, where he raised thoroughbred horses and beef cattle. He served for a while as president of the Bowie race track.

After winning a bout with cancer and surviving 15 years after open heart surgery, he died Oct. 1, 1975, at age 85.

One of his sons, Lee, is president of the American League. Another, Bill, became a network television executive.

Joss, known better as "Addie," may be only vaguely familiar to the present generation because he pitched for the Cleveland Indians between 1902 and 1910. But his record was phenomenal.

He had a 160-97 won-lost record. Four times he won more than 20 games. He pitched 45 shutouts, two no-hitters, one a perfect game. His 1.88 earned run average is second only to Ed Walsh's 1.82 in the record book.

On April 14, 1911, just two days after his 31st birthday and two days before he was scheduled to pitch the opening game for Cleveland, he died of spinal meningitis. The veterans' committee waived the 10-year rule — the pitcher served only nine — to make Joss eligible for consideration.

MacPhail was a big, boisterous man, a two-fisted drinker and a chain smoker. He was tweaking the nose of the baseball establishment before generations became conscious of Bill Veeck and Charles O. Finley.

Boyd expects more from Trojans

LOS ANGELES — Coach Bob Boyd expects his Southern California basketball team to bounce back from its 83-71 loss to crosstown rival UCLA last Saturday night.

"I see no reason why what I felt was a poor game for us will reflect on our two games coming up," said Boyd Monday at his weekly meeting with members of the media. "We played very nervously against UCLA. We showed all of the shaky characteristics of a young team trying to beat a very good one on their home court."

The Trojans, 3-2 in Pacific-8 Conference play and 10-8 overall, return to action Thursday night against California, 2-3 and 9-9. On Saturday USC faces Stanford. Both games will be played at the Sports Arena.

"If we can get two wins here this week and go up to the Bay Area next week and win two more, we will be in good shape in the conference," said Boyd. "And it's not wishful thinking that we can win all four."

The Trojans face the same two opponents away-from-home next weekend.

"It's premature to concede UCLA the conference title," said Boyd of the Bruins, who have won 11 league championships in a row and are 5-0 in Pac-8 play. "They are certainly in the driver's seat, though."

Boyd said he might be forced to make one lineup change this week if junior guard Steve Smith's injured knee continues to bother him. Smith has been hampered by an injured left knee all season.

"He was about 50 percent effective against UCLA," said Boyd. "His knee bothers him considerably. He has to have it drained regularly. One of his strengths was his quickness but that is curtailed a great deal now."

Possibilities to replace Smith include freshman George Ratkovich, sophomore Willie Brigham and junior Neil Arnold.

As far as Cal is concerned, Boyd said he is "puzzled to see that they are only .500 this season with the talent they have."

Stanford, the Trojans' opponent Saturday afternoon, "must be a good team to have beaten Providence," said Boyd. "We are supposed to beat them, but our team is very inconsistent and we could lose."

Falcons meet Gaels in EBAL boot tilt

Foothill faces a virtual must-win situation when it hosts Dublin in a key East Bay Athletic League soccer match this afternoon.

The Falcons are 7-3 while the league-leading Gaels are 9-0-1. A Dublin win would eliminate Foothill from title contention.

In other EBAL matches today Amador Valley (8-1-1) travels to Livermore (5-6), California (1-10) hosts Monte Vista (2-9) and Granada (7-1-2) is at San Ramon (0-9).

Amador Valley might be the hottest team in the league right now, having won three matches with ease since the Christmas break.

Zeman third Raider assistant coach to go

OAKLAND — Bob Zeman, defensive backfield coach for the Oakland Raiders for seven years, has resigned, the third Raider assistant to leave since the season ended.

Zeman confirmed Monday that he had resigned, saying, "I just didn't feel I could live within the system. It wasn't any one thing, but an accumulation of things."

Zeman, 41, a graduate of Wisconsin, followed linebacker coach Don Shinnick, who was fired earlier, and special teams coach Joe Scannella, who resigned to become head coach of the Montreal Alouettes.

"The organization was super, but I stepped back and evaluated myself and I wasn't maintaining the standards I had set for myself," Zeman said. "I don't even have anything planned."

Dons visit MV in title quest

Amador Valley High School's wrestling team, with a one-match lead on Livermore and Granada, is approaching the East Bay Athletic League dual-meet title.

The Dons, who have already defeated Granada and Livermore, have a 5-0 mark going into tonight's match against Monte Vista in Danville. Livermore and the Matadors are 4-1.

In other EBAL matches tonight Granada is at Foothill (2-3); Livermore hosts California (0-5) and San Ramon (1-4) is at Dublin (2-3).

Monte Vista (2-3 in EBAL play) has some fine quality wrestlers but lacks the depth in all weights that the Dons have.

Steve Potts, a veteran at 112 pounds, and Mark Hanna (95 pounds) are stand-out matmen for AV. Potts defeated Chasen Grisham of Dublin, 12-0, last week. Hanna has come through in the clutch for AV in the big matches.

Perhaps tonight's closest match will be the Dublin-San Ramon contest. Both teams have some good wrestlers and a close decision or pin instead of a decision could decide the match either way.

Kentucky still on top

Despite a 78-62 trashing at the hands of Alabama's Crimson Tide, Kentucky maintained its hold on the No. 1 spot in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Wildcats, 14-1, garnered 35 of a possible 50 first-place votes Monday and held the top position with 926 points.

Arkansas' Razorbacks, 19-1, defeated Baylor 56-55 in overtime, then beat SMU 72-65 and Texas Tech 54-49 to move up from fourth a week ago to No. 2 with 728 points.

Marquette, 15-2, lost to Loyola of Chicago 68-64 after beating Xavier of Ohio 78-62 and fell from second to third with 664 points.

Notre Dame, 14-3, beat Dartmouth 78-64, West Virginia 103-82 and Maryland 69-54 and moved up a notch to fourth with 649 points.

Of the 15 first-place ballots that Kentucky did not receive, Marquette received five, Arkansas four, Notre Dame two and seventh-place Michigan State four.

Cowboys now 7-1

The EBAL's new blood

Livermore High School's basketball team is in high gear now and poses a threat to Amador Valley's four-year reign as champion of the East Bay Athletic League.

The Cowboys took a 67-59 victory over host Granada late Saturday night to move their EBAL record to 7-1, a full game ahead of AV. The Dons polished off Monte Vista 59-44 and gained sole possession of second place with that win.

In other EBAL action Saturday night Foothill took its first league victory with a 56-46 decision over Dublin and California nipped San Ramon 52-50.

John Farfan and Dick Patterson sparked Livermore's offense as they hit for 23 and 19 points, respectively.

Behind 16-12 at the first-quarter break the 'Pokes outscored the Matadors 20-12 in the second period to take a 33-28 advantage into the lockerroom at halftime.

An early spurt in the third quarter helped put the game away for the Cowboys.

Farfan, who well a great game at guard, hit some key buckets in that stretch.

Rick Rosenbach banged in 19 points to lead Foothill to its win over the Gaels. Mike Buckley added 12 points and Steve Mitchell 11 for the winners.

The Falcons trailed by five points going into the third period but held the losers to six markers while scoring 17 of their own in that quarter to take a 39-33 advantage.

Chris Kearns hit for 13 points and Ken Noble had 10 for the Dons in their easy victory over Monte Vista. Randy Woods tallied 12 points for the losers.

California evened its EBAL record at 4-4 as Chuck Cary tallied 20 points despite playing on an injured ankle. Daryl Lamb added 15, including two free throws with 20 seconds left to ice the contest.

Darrin Johnson and Scott Towns each had 12 markers for the Wolves.

The Grizzlies outscored San Ramon 15-11 in the final quarter to take the victory. San Ramon is now 2-6 after dropping its sixth straight game. The Wolves won their first two EBAL games of the season before hitting the slump.

Panthers edge Ironwoods

The Pink Panthers nipped the Ironwoods 2-1 in Livermore Girls' Soccer Under-19 action last week.

Chris Humrichouse and Michele Fields scored for the winners. Lynn Hunter tallied for the losers. Janelle Nevins and Terry Buckley had assists for the Pink Panthers. Judy Kelly and Paula Watkins combined for 19 saves for the winners. Kelly Porth and Sheila Torrez did well for the Ironwoods.

The Bachlor Buttons dumped the Snowfires 5-1. Phyllis Hurdlow, Michelle Payne, Donna Brown, Dennise Harris and Susan Giorso scored for the winners. Lynn Kusko tallied for the Snowfires. Leslie Pons and Julie LeBow starred for the losers.

In Under-14 action the Orchids and Lotus Blossom struggled to a 0-0 tie.

Mellie Henderson and Deb Griffith did well for the Orchids while Dana Martin and Kris Kruger starred for the Lotus Blossom.

Sterling Silver toppled the Lilacs 2-0. Kimberly Mussey and Cathryn Colley tallied for the winners. Elizabeth Cowder was another standout for the winners. Tracy Keller, Cathy Thompson and Julie Dolan did well for the losers.

ERDA's role in referendum

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal agency advocating nuclear energy tried to influence the outcome of a California anti-nuclear referendum but no laws were violated in the process, the General Accounting Office reported Monday.

The report was requested by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, in connection with an Energy Department nomination hearing.

Robert Thorne, former director of the San Francisco office of the Energy Research and Development Administration has been renominated for the post of assistant secretary for energy technology in the Energy Department.

Questions concerning Thorne's role in government efforts to influence the outcome of the referendum contributed to delay in a committee decision on the original nomination by President Carter last year. Carter resubmitted Thorne's name last week.

Resumed hearings before Jackson's committee on the Thorne nomination are expected sometime in February or March. Sen. Floyd K. Haskell, D-Colo., and Sen. James G. Abourezk, D-S.D., both have said they will continue to question Thorne's credentials on the grounds that the job he has been nominated for needs a man not partial to any one energy form.

The GAO report does not name any ERDA officials involved in trying to defeat the California nuclear safeguards initiative. It lost by a two to one margin on June 8, 1976.

GAO said, however, that it appeared that the San Francisco office of ERDA was not the "quarterback" in taking a pro-nuclear position concerning the referendum but "was carrying out the wishes of higher level headquarters officials."

GAO said it concluded "high level agency officials intended to present nuclear power in a favorable light avoiding an objective discussion of its drawbacks... GAO believes that the agency, by advocating the absolute need for nuclear power, and failing to mention its disadvantages or problems, attempted to influence Californians to vote against the referendum."

GAO said ERDA, through its San Francisco office, significantly increased its public information activities in California, particularly in the form of energy exhibits, publications and speeches.

It described certain statements in a pamphlet called "Shedding Light" as "propaganda" and said that just before the California referendum ERDA "distributed 78,600 out of 100,000 copies printed to its offices and contractors in California."

"The agency's actions were not illegal because no federal statute prohibits federal agencies from taking actions to influence a state election or referendum," GAO declared.

Congress would have to enact legislation to avoid a recurrence, GAO said. It called on the Energy Department, which absorbed ERDA, to institute its own standards controlling its officials in state legislative or election activities and "monitor their application."

He'll ask satellite ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter promised Monday to ask the Soviet Union not to send up any more atomic satellites like the one that fell on Canada and said "we would be glad to forego the deployment of any such satellites altogether."

Calling for more rigid precautions among all nations, the President said the United States and the Soviet Union should try to develop a "sure-fire" safety system to keep such nuclear power satellites from falling to earth or into the atmosphere.

"If we cannot evolve those failsafe methods," Carter said, "then I think there ought to be a total prohibition against earth orbiting satellites. I would favor at this moment an agreement with the Soviets to prohibit earth orbiting satellites with atomic or radiation material in them."

Carter spoke at a nationally televised news conference, his second this year. He pledged to pursue the "failsafe" system and the atomic-satellite ban with the Soviet Union. Carter said the Soviets had told him their satellite was designed to be destroyed during its fall and that it would not explode.

The President said he knew no more than the public knows about what searchers have found in Canada.

Canadian officials said earlier in the day that two American wildlife scientists had found radioactive wreckage from the satellite, which plunged to earth Jan. 24 cutting a nine to 10-foot crater into ice on the Thelon River in the Northwest Territories. The wreckage was described as structural tubing and a smashed metal canister.

The two Americans showed no signs of radioactive contamination, the officials said.

At his wide-ranging news conference, Carter also said:

— Rejection of any phase of his tax, jobs and inflation-fighting programs could aggravate the nation's economic problems. He said success depends on "a very careful balance" between conflicting priorities.

If necessary, the President said, he would try to exert influence on Congress and through the American people to keep his programs intact.

— He has no intention at this time to intercede in the nation's coal strike by invoking the Taft-Hartley Act, which would require miners to return to work for an 80-day cooling off period. Nonetheless, he conceded that prospects for an end to the strike do not look good.

The President said he hoped the United Mine Workers and the coal operators would speed up a resolution to their dispute.

New flu shot fears dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The risks from dying of influenza are 1,000 times greater than the risks of dying from vaccination, a government health official said Monday.

Dr. William Foege, director of the Center for Disease Control (CDC), made the assertion to a panel of experts considering whether to recommend a mass inoculation campaign against the Russian flu. The new flu strain broke out in Cheyenne, Wyo., recently and is expected to spread later this winter or next winter.

Foege sought to allay the fears raised by the problem-plagued swine flu inoculation campaign of 1976.

The swine flu inoculation campaign in 1976 came to a rapid halt after some persons who were inoculated contracted Guillain-Barre Syndrome, a paralyzing disease that can lead to death. The swine flu epidemic never occurred.

Although considered relatively mild, the Russian flu has spread rapidly among children in the Soviet Union and elsewhere in Europe and Asia. It struck more than 30 percent of children 14 and younger in Leningrad in recent weeks, according to reports relayed by U.S. health researchers who visited Moscow last week.

Russian flu is an A-type flu strain similar to viruses that caused outbreaks of flu around the world from 1947 to 1950. Fifteen states currently report widespread outbreaks of the more familiar A-Victoria and A-Texas flu, which also occurred last winter.

Americans between ages 24 and 50 are considered to have some immunity to the Russian flu, while children and young adults are the prime targets. Federal health officials said persons over 50 also are in the high-risk group, particularly because the elderly run the highest risks of serious illness or death from flu.

Although one drug-maker is preparing to start production of a Russian flu vaccine, the vaccine won't be ready for at least two months, when the current flu season will be drawing to a close.

Federal health officials decided last year that the increased risk of Guillain-Barre was likely to occur with any influenza vaccination. The risk is up to 12 times greater for several weeks after the shot.

But the syndrome also occurs naturally among people who are not vaccinated. The CDC found that half the 1,100 cases of the syndrome reported nationwide from October 1976 through January 1977 involved persons who did not get swine flu shots. About 550 persons, half from each group, died.

Foege stressed that the risks from inoculation were relatively small, roughly one in two million, or 0.5 per million. That is less than the 0.59 deaths per million caused by lightning each year, he said.

Foege said six to nine cases of the syndrome occur naturally in each million persons annually. With vaccination, the number is four per million among persons aged 18 to 24, but 10 per million for those over 50. The over-all death rate is 5 percent for those who contract the syndrome, but it is 12.5 percent for those 65 or older.

Support for mid-American

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, carrying President Carter's tax program to Capitol Hill Monday, learned quickly that Congress has a soft spot in its heart for middle America and the expense accounts of businessmen.

Few members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee volunteered support for the package of tax cuts and revisions as the panel opened hearings on the proposals. And few vowed to oppose it.

However, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the committee, repeated his contention that the $25-billion net tax cut proposed by Carter for 1979 is too large.

"I am still going to do my best to hold the reduction to $15 billion to $20 billion net, but we are going to have to give and take in all areas, so it will be a different mix altogether" than Carter recommended, Ullman told reporters.

The Carter plan contains tax cuts for individuals and business that are aimed at helping offset higher Social Security taxes and some effects of inflation. But the President also proposes to raise taxes on some taxpayers by eliminating various deductions.

As Blumenthal sought to justify the 30 separate parts of the package, members of the committee returned again and again to two themes:

— More tax relief is needed by middle-income Americans — generally those earning under $30,000 a year.

— Forget about reducing or eliminating deductions for what has become known as the "three-martini lunch" and other business entertainment expenses.

Members of the committee raised more questions with Blumenthal about business expense accounts than any other subject.

Rep. Richard T. Schulze, R-Pa., asked Blumenthal if he, while serving as chairman of the Bendix Corp., had ever attended a lunch where someone had drunk three martinis. "Yes, but not if I had any control over it," Blumenthal responded.

Blumenthal admitted that Bendix had paid his country club dues. But as for using a company-owned yacht that had qualified for a tax deduction, Blumenthal replied, "I don't like water."

Present law allows businesses to deduct from income which is subject to taxation any ordinary and necessary business expenses. This has been interpreted, for example, to allow a deduction for buying lunch for a client or taking a potential customer to a football game.

The effect of such a deduction is for the government to pay about half the cost of that lunch or that football ticket. Carter wants to eliminate deductions for sports tickets, hunting lodges and first-class airfare and to halve them for meals.

Ullman, the committee chairman, agreed with several of his colleagues that additional tax relief is desirable for middle-income Americans.

CBS HAS ANNOUNCED the beginning of production for "Husbands and Wives," billed as a "new, hour-long sophisticated domestic comedy." The program, CBS says, plays "upon the foibles and morals of five middle-class couples—all close friends—as they work their way through the triumphs and defeats of married life."

'Victory' on Channel 2

OAKLAND — "Victory at Sea," described as "the most ambitious and most successful venture in the history of television," will be broadcast on Channel 2 beginning at 9 p.m. Wednesday.

The 13-week series, produced by the National Broadcasting Company in cooperation with the U.S. Navy, tells the dramatic story of World War II on, over and under the sea from the days after September 1939, when Nazi U-boats preyed on Allied shipping in the Atlantic, to the final defeat of the Axis aggressors in the Pacific.

Much of the film, including German and Japanese footage captured during and after the war is seen for the first time in "Victory at Sea," even by Navy Personnel.

Included are Japanese film of the attack on Pearl Harbor and German films of submarine warfare in the Atlantic.

The series includes Richard Rodgers' original 13-hour-long score, the longest symphonic piece written. Music is performed by the NBC Symphony Orchestra.

WE WORKED TEN YEARS TO COME UP WITH A LOW 'TAR' YOU WON'T GIVE UP IN TEN MINUTES.

A lot of smokers never get through their first pack of low 'tar' cigarettes. And if they do, they usually don't come back for more.

The reason, of course, is taste. Originally, you couldn't get real cigarette taste without what has come to be known as tobacco 'tar.' The problem of reducing this 'tar' to 5mg. while maintaining taste is enormous. Decade is the first low 'tar' to have succeeded in doing just that.

The Decade "Total System."

How were we able to keep the taste in a low 'tar' when so many others have failed? Mainly by developing our unique "Total System" in which every part of a Decade cigarette is arranged in perfect balance with each other. The tobacco, the filter, and even the paper. Only by concentrating on these parts were we able to perfect the whole.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing," plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

Take the tobacco, for example. Its taste is boosted by a very unique method called "Flavor Packing" which allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

The Filter.

Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

Our filtration process is also unique. Simply, we've created a "Taste Channel" within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

Even our high porosity paper is specifically designed to give an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result.

A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And you'll find out why your first pack of Decade won't be your last.

Only 5 mg.
'tar.'

Regular and Menthol.
